Dear Betty,

You've probably thought that I had completely forgotten you. At last, I've made copies of the tax records and deeds of Greene County, Ohio that are available from the Family History Library, pertaining to the Stiths, Tuckers, and Vandolahs. It wasn't until just last week that the last of the tax records on microfilm arrived from Salt Lake City. The reel of microfilm had to be back ordered, or so I was told. I included the source on the backs of each of the pages.

The tax records/lists date from 1816 to 1838, but I didn't always find entries for family members, especially Tucker family members, for each of those years. I only found one entry for James Stith in the year 1829. The entries are roughly alphabetically by surname. Interestingly, for several years, Reason (Rezin) Tucker was included with a Thomas Neal rather than separately under the "T's". I believe that I sent you a copy of the 1820 US Census of Sugar Creek Township, Greene County, Ohio. You will note that Thomas Neal is next to William Tucker on the census. I am wondering if there is a family connection between Reason (Rezin) Tucker and Thomas Neal. Is it at possible that Thomas Neal is related to Reason (Rezin) Tucker's wife Frances? More digging is necessary.

I apologize that each page of the deed records was not copied on a single sheet. When I tried copying each page on a single sheet, the pages proved difficult to read. The copies aren't the best, but they are better at the higher magnification and on multiple sheets rather than one sheet per page.

I've ordered in the index to deeds for Greene County, Ohio once again in order to find entries for Abraham Morgan and Abraham Kiser who married Tucker women. I'm still wondering if their wives were daughters of William Tucker. I'll also look for the Jump family. There were no Jumps in the tax lists. I'm also searching the court records of Greene County, Ohio that are available from the Family History Library.

I hope you find the inclosed documents of interest. I'll keep searching.

All the best,

John

GREENE COUNTY HISTORY

(FROM HOWE'S HISTORICAL COLLECTION OF OHIO 1849)

Reprint Editor's Note: These pages of Greene County history and sketches from Howe's 1849 edition were thought to be of sufficient interest to include. This history was written six years before the 1855 wall map was published.

GREENE.

GREENE was formed from Hamilton and Ross, May 1st, 1803, and named from Gen. Nathaniel Greene, of the revolution. The soil is generally clayey; the surface on the east is flat and well adapted to grazing, the rest of the county is rolling and productive in wheat and corn. Considerable water power is furnished by the streams. There are some fine limestone quarries, and near Xenia, on Cæsar's creek, is a quarry of beautifully variegated marble. The principal productions are wheat, corn, rye, grass, grass seed, oats, barley, sheep and swine. The following is a list of the townships, in 1840, with their population.

Bath,	1717	Miami,	1230	Sugar Creek,	2379
Beaver Creek,	1762	Ross,	1310	Xenia,	5190
Cæsar's Creek,	1730	Silver Creek,	2435

The population of Greene, in 1820, was 10,509: in 1830, 15,122; and in 1840, 17,753, or 43 inhabitants to a square mile.

The Shawnee town, "Old Chillicothe," was on the Little Miami, in this county, about 3 miles north of the site of Xenia: it was a place of note, and is frequently mentioned in the annals of the early explorations and settlements of the west.

In the year 1773, Capt. Thomas Bullit, of Virginia, one of the first settlers of Kentucky, was proceeding down the Ohio river, with a party, to make surveys and a settlement there, when he stopped and left his companions on the river, and passed through the wilderness to Old Chillicothe, to obtain the consent of the Indians to his intended settlement. He entered the town alone, with a flag of truce, before he was discovered. The Indians, astonished at his boldness flocked around him, when the following dialogue ensued between him and a principal chief.

Indian Chief. What news do you bring? are you from the Long Knife? If you are an ambassador, why did you not send a runner?

Bullit. I have no bad news. The Long Knife and the Red men are at peace, and I have come among my brothers to have a friendly talk with them about settling on the other side of the Ohio.

Indian Chief. Why did you not send a runner?

Bullit. I had no runner swifter than myself, and as I was in haste, I could not wait the return of a runner. If you were hungry and had killed a deer, would you send your squaw to town to tell the news, and wait her return before you would eat?

This reply of Bullit put the bystanders in high humor; they relaxed from their native gravity and laughed heartily. The Indians conducted Bullit into the principal wigwam of the town, and regaled him with venison, after which, he addressed the chief as follows:

Brothers:—I am sent with my people, whom I left on the Ohio, to settle the country on the other side of that river, as low down as the falls. We came from Virginia. I only want the country to settle and to cultivate the soil. There will be no objection to your hunting and trapping in it, as heretofore. I hope you will live with us in friendship.

To this address, the principal chief made the following reply.

Brother:—You have come a hard journey through the woods and the grass. We are pleased to find that your people in settling our country, are not to disturb us in our hunting; for we must hunt to kill meat for our women and children, and to have something to buy powder and lead, and procure blankets and other necessities. We desire you will be strong in discharging your promises towards us, as we are determined to be strong in advising our young men to be kind, friendly and peaceable towards you. Having finished his mission, Capt. Bullit returned to his men, and with them descended the river to the falls.*

Some of this party of Bullit's shortly after laid out the town of Louisville, Kentucky.

The celebrated Daniel Boone was taken prisoner, with 27 others, in Kentucky, in February, 1778, in the war of the revolution, and brought to Old Chillicothe. Through the influence of the British Governor, Hamilton, Boone, with 10 others, was taken from thence to Detroit.

The governor took an especial fancy to Boone, and offered considerable sums for his release, but to no purpose, for the Indians also had taken their fancy, and so great was it that they took him back to Old Chillicothe, adopted him into a family, and fondly caressed him. He mingled with their sports, shot, fished, hunted and swam with them, and had become deeply ingratiated in their favor, when on the 1st of June, they took him to assist them in making salt in the Scioto valley, at the old salt wells, near, or at, we believe, the present town of Jackson, Jackson county. They remained a few days, and when returned to Old Chillicothe, his heart was agonized by the sight of 450 warriors, armed, painted and equipped in all the paraphernalia of savage splendor, ready to start on an expedition against Boonesborough. To avert the cruel blow that was about to fall upon his friends, he alone, on the morning of the 16th of June, escaped from his Indian companions, and arrived in time to foil the plans of the enemy, and not only saved the borough, which he himself had founded, but probably all the frontier parts of Kentucky, from devastation.

Boone told an aged pioneer, yet living,* that when taken prisoner on this occasion, the Indians got out of food, and after having killed and eaten their dogs, were ten days without any other sustenance than that of a decoction made from the oozings of the inner-bark of the white oak, which after drinking, Boone could travel with the best of them. At length, the Indians shot a deer, and boiled its entrails to a jelly, of which they all drank, and it soon acted freely on their bowels. They gave some to Boone, but his stomach refused it. After repeated efforts, they forced him to swallow about half a pint, which he did with wry faces and disagreeable retchings, much to the amusement of the simple savages who laughed heartily. After this medicine had well operated, the Indians told Boone that he might eat; but that if he had done so before, it would have killed him. They then all fell to, and soon made amends for their long fast. At Detroit, he astonished the governor by making gun-powder, he having been shut up in a room with all the materials.

Another early pioneer,* who knew Boone well, says in a communication to us:

It is now (1847) 54 years since I first saw Daniel Boone. He was then about 60 years old, of a medium size, say 5 feet 10 inches, not given to corpulency, retired, unobtrusive, and a man of few words. My acquaintance was made with him in the winter season, and well remember his dress was of tow cloth, and not a woollen garment on his body, unless his stockings were of that material. Home-made was the common wear of the people of Kentucky, at that time: sheep were not yet introduced into the country. I slept four nights in the house of one West, with Boone: there were a number of strangers, and he was constantly occupied in answering questions. He had nothing remarkable in his personal appearance. His son, Capt. N. Boone, now an old man, is serving in the 1st regiment United States Dragoons.

In July, 1779, the year after Boone escaped from Old Chillicothe, Colonel John Bowman, with 160 Kentuckians, marched against the town: The narrative of this expedition is derived from the "Notes on Kentucky."

The party rendezvoused at the mouth of the Licking, and at the end of the second night got in sight of the town undiscovered. It was determined to await until daylight in the morning before they would make the attack; but by the imprudence of some of the men, whose curiosity exceeded their judgment, the party was discovered by the Indians before the officers and men had arrived at the several positions assigned them. As soon as the alarm was given, a fire commenced on both sides, and was kept up, while the women and children were seen running from cabin to cabin, in the greatest confusion, and collecting in the most central and strongest. At clear day-light, it was discovered that Bowman's men were from seventy to one hundred yards from the cabins, in which the Indians had collected, and which they appeared determined to defend. Having no other arms than tomahawks and rifles, it was thought imprudent to attempt to storm strong cabins, well defended by expert warriors. In consequence of the warriors collecting in a few cabins contiguous to each other, the remainder of the town was left unprotected, therefore, while a fire was kept up at the port holes, which engaged the attention of those within, fire was set to 30 or 40 cabins, which were consumed, and a considerable quantity of property, consisting of kettles and blankets, were taken from those cabins. In searching the woods near the town, 133 horses were collected.

About 10 o'clock, Bowman and his party commenced their march homeward, after having nine men killed. What loss the Indians sustained, was never known, except Blackfish, their principal chief, who was wounded through the knee and died of the wound.† After receiving the wound, Blackfish proposed to surrender, being confident that his wound was dangerous, and believing that there were among the white people surgeons that could cure him, but that none among his own people could do it.

The party had not marched more than eight or ten miles on their return home, before the Indians appeared in considerable force on their rear, and began to press hard upon that quarter. Bowman selected his ground, and formed his men in a square; but the Indians declined a close engagement, only keeping up a scattering fire, it was soon discovered that their object was to retard their march until they could procure reinforcements from the neighboring villages.

As soon as a strong position was taken by Col. Bowman, the Indians retired, and he resumed the line of march, when he was again attacked in the rear. He again formed for battle, and again the Indians retired, and the scene was acted over several times. At length, John Bulger, James Harrod and George Michael Bedinger, with about 100 more mounted on horseback, rushed on the Indian ranks and dispersed them in every direction. After which the Indians abandoned the pursuit. Bowman crossed the Ohio at the mouth of the Little Miami, and after crossing, the men dispersed to their several homes.

* Col. John Johnston.

† This is an error. A late publication gives evidence that he was killed in an excursion into Kentucky, by a white woman.—H. H.

VIEW IN XENIA.

In the summer after this expedition, Gen. Clark invaded the Indian country. On his approach, the Indians reduced Old Chillicothe to ashes.

The article relating to early times in Greene county, is slightly abridged from a communication by Thomas C. Wright, Esq., the county auditor.

First Court House in Greene.

After Abdolonymus had been taken from his humble station in life, and made king of Sidonea, it is said he kept a pair of wooden shoes near his throne, to remind him of his former obscurity, and check the pride which power is so apt to engender in the heart of man. The above drawing is deemed worthy of preservation, not only as a memento of early times, and serving as a contrast to the present advanced state of improvement, but on account of the historical associations it raises in the memory of the first judicial proceedings and organization of Greene county.

The house, of which the engraving is a correct representation, is yet standing, $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles west of Xenia, near the Dayton road. It was built by Gen. Benj. Whiteman, a short distance south of the log cabin mill of Owen Davis, on Beaver creek. This mill, the first erected in Greene, was finished in 1798. A short distance east, were erected two block-houses, and it was intended, should danger render it necessary, to connect them by a line of pickets, and include the mill within the stockade. This mill was used by the settlers of "the Dutch Station," some 30 miles distant, in the center of Miami county.

On the 10th of May, 1803, the first court for organizing Greene county, was held in this house, then the residence of Peter Borders. Wm. Maxwell, Benj. Whiteman and James Barret were the associate judges, and John Paul, clerk. The first business of the court was to lay off the county into townships, and after transacting some other business, they adjourned "until court in course," having been in session one day.

The first court for the trial of causes, was held in the same house, on Tuesday, Aug. 2d, 1803, with the same associate judges, and Francis Dunlavy, presiding judge, and Daniel Simms, prosecuting attorney. "And there came a grand jury, to wit: Wm. J. Stewart, foreman, John Willson, Wm. Buckles, Abm. Van Eaton, James Snodgrass, John Judy, Evan Morgan, Robt. Marshall, Alex. C. Armstrong, Joseph C. Vance, Joseph Willson, John Buckhannon, Martin Mendenhall and Harry Martin, who were sworn a grand jury of inquest, for the body of Greene county." After receiving the charge, "they retired out of court;" a circumstance not to be wondered at, as there was but one room in the house. Their place of retirement, or jury room, was a little squat-shaped pole hut, shown on the right of the view.

And now, while their honors, with becoming gravity, are sitting behind a table ready for business, and the grand jury making solemn inquest of crimes committed, the contrast between the state of the county then and at present, naturally presents itself to the mind. Since then, forty-four years ago—a period within the recollection of many of our citizens—and what a change! Then it was almost an entire wilderness—a primeval forest, planted by the hand of nature. The first house in Greene county was built by Daniel Willson, who is now living near Centerville, Montgomery county. It was raised on the 7th day of April, 1796, about 4 miles from where Bellbrook has long since been laid out, in Sugarcreek township. In 1798, Thomas Tounsley settled near the falls of Massie's creek, some 8 miles from Xenia. The same year, James Galloway, sen., settled on the Little Miami, 2 miles north of Oldtown. Isaiah and Wm. Garner Sutton erected the first house in Cæsar's creek township, in 1799, about 5 miles south of Xenia, near where the Bullskin road crosses Cæsar's creek. Cæsarville was laid out by T. Carneal, in 1800, and the first house in it was built the year following. It was expected to become the county seat, but was finally rejected in favor of Xenia. Cæsarville, at the time of this court, contained a few log cabins, and so scattered about, miles apart, the traveller might find one of these primitive dwellings sending up its smoke from a mud and stick chimney among the giants of the forest, each cabin with a little patch of a corn-field, thickly dotted over with girdled trees. A bridle-path, or blazed trees, led the traveller from one to the other. But they were the abodes of contentment, simplicity of manners, whole-hearted hospitality and generosity of soul, which does honor to human nature and gives a charm to existence. We glance at the county as it now appears, teeming with population, in an advanced state of improvement and cultivation—farm contiguous to farm, with large barns—the hewed log-houses which succeeded log-cabins are mostly gone, and in their stead are commodious brick, stone and frame dwellings—flourishing orchards, numerous excellent mills—the whole county intersected with roads in every direction—a railroad running through it, connecting it with the Queen city, and the same connection will soon be with Lake Erie, affording a speedy transportation to market of the immense quantities of produce raised by the farmers. The change is so great that it brings to mind the wonder-working wand of Prospero, which, being waved over a wilderness, had transformed it into a blooming garden. But the magical wand, in this case, was free, white labor, persevering industry and good management.

But to return to the court. From a careful examination of the records and other sources of information, I cannot learn there was any business for the grand jury when they retired. But they were not permitted to remain idle long: the spectators in attendance promptly took the matter into consideration. They, doubtless, thought it a great pity to have a learned court and nothing for it to do: so they set to and cut out employment for their honors by engaging in divers hard fights at fisty-cuffs, right on the ground. So it seems our pioneers fought for the benefit of the court. At all events, while their honors were waiting to settle differences according to law, they were making up issues and settling them by trial "by combat"—a process by which they avoided the much complained of "laws delay," and incurred no other damages than black eyes and bloody noses, which were regarded as mere trifles, of course. Among the incidents of the day, characteristic of the times, was this: A Mr. —, from Warren county, was in attendance. Owen Davis, the owner of the mill, who, by the way, was a brave Indian fighter, as well as a kind-hearted, obliging man, charged this Warren county man with speculating in pork, alias stealing his neighbor's hogs. The insult was resented—a combat took place forthwith, in which Davis proved victorious. He then went into court, and planting himself in front of the judges, he observed, addressing himself particularly to one of them, "Well, Ben, I've whipped that d—d hog-thief—what's the damage—what's to pay? and thereupon, suiting the action to the word, he drew out his buckskin purse, containing 8 or 10 dollars, and slammed it down on the table—then shaking his fist at the judge, whom he addressed, he continued, "Yes, Ben, and if you'd steal a hog, d—n you, I'd whip you too." He had, doubtless, come to the conclusion, that, as there was a court, the luxury of fighting could not be indulged in gratis, and he was for paying up as he went. Seventeen witnesses were sworn and sent before the grand jury, and nine bills of indictment were found the same day—all for affrays and assaults and batteries committed after the court was organized. To these indictments the parties all pleaded guilty, and were fined—Davis among the rest, who was fined eight dollars for his share in the transactions of the day.

The following is the first entry made on the record after the grand jury retired: "The court then proceeded to examine the several candidates for the surveyor's office, and James Galloway, jun., being well qualified, was appointed surveyor of said county." On the 2d day of the term, Joseph C. Vance (father of ex-Gov. Vance, of Champaign county,) was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for establishing the seat of justice, who, with David Huston and Joseph Willson, his securities, entered into a bond, with a penalty of 1500 dollars, for the faithful performance of his duties. He surveyed and laid out the town of Xenia (which, by the way, is an old French word, signifying a new-year's gift,) the same season, for at the next December term, he was allowed "$49.25 for laying off the town of Xenia, finding chainmen, making plots and selling lots." On the 3d day of the term, Daniel Symmes was allowed twenty dollars for prosecuting in behalf of the state. The presiding judge then left the court, but it was continued by the associate judges for the transaction of county business. In addition to the duties now pertaining to associate judges, they discharged the duties now performed by the board of county commissioners. Archibald Lowry and Griffith Foos, were each licensed to keep a tavern in the town of Springfield, on the payment of eight dollars for each license. A license was also granted to Peter Borders to keep a tavern at his house, on the payment of four dollars, "together with all legal fees." So our old log-house has the honor of having the first learned court held within its rough walls; and, in addition to that, it was, in fact, the first hotel ever licensed in the county in which hog and hommony, and new corn whiskey could be had in abundance. Perhaps the court was a little interested in granting the license. Like old Jack Falstaff, they might like "to take their own ease in their own inn." James Galloway, sen., was appointed county treasurer. The court then adjourned, having been in session three days.

Napoleon said, it was "but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous." Old Faneuil Hall has the proud boast of being the cradle of liberty; and it may be claimed for our old cabin, that it is the cradle of Greene county—in which it was organized—in which was had the first judicial proceedings—whose walls first resounded with the eloquence of those long-robed gentlemen, of whom Martial has satirically said, "Iras et verba locant."

On the 19th day of the same month, (August,) the associate judges held another court for the transaction of county business. They continued to meet and adjourn from day to day, waiting for the lister of taxable property to return his book, until the 22d, when they made an order, that 50 cents should be paid for each wolf killed within the bounds of the county, and "that the largest block-house should be appropriated to the use of a jail;" and Benjamin Whiteman, Esq., was appointed, in behalf of the county, to contract for repairing it—a decisive mark of civilization—and that the rights of meum and tuum were hereafter to be observed and enforced. Among the allowances, at this term, there was one of 6 dollars to Joseph C. Vance, for carrying the election returns of Sugar creek township to Cincinnati; and a like sum to David Huston, for returning the poll-book of Beaver creek. He afterwards held the office of associate judge 21 years, and twice represented Greene county in the state legislature. He lived the life of an honest man—was beloved and respected by all who knew him. He died in 1843. The clerk and sheriff were allowed 20 dollars each for ex-officio fees, and Jacob Shingledecker, 9 dollars and 50 cents, for preparing the block-house to serve as a jail—a great perversion from the original design of the building, as it was intended, at first, to keep unwelcome visitors out, and ended in keeping unwilling visitors in. It was ordered by the court, that the inhabitants of Mad River township should be exempted from the payment of taxes, or rather, their taxes were reduced two cents on each horse and one cent on each cow. The reason assigned for this favor, was "for erecting public buildings." As we have seen no public buildings yet but the two block-houses, and the one which figures at the head of this communication, the reader would, doubtless, be much surprised that the erection of these should be deemed sufficiently meritorious as, in part, to exempt the inhabitants from the payment of taxes. But these public buildings were situated in Cincinnati. We apprehend that but few of our citizens are aware of the fact, that the first settlers in this county contributed to the erection of public buildings in Cincinnati—the old stone court-house, we suppose, which was burnt down while used as barracks in time of the last war, and the hewed log jail which stood on the north side of the public square.

The first supreme court was held in the same house, on the 25th day of October, 1803, by their honors Samuel Huntingdon and Wm. Spriggs, judges; William Maxwell, sheriff, John Paul, clerk, and Arthur St. Clair, Esq., of Cincinnati, prosecuting attorney. Richard Thomas was admitted an attorney and counsellor at law. Nothing more was done, and the court adjourned the same day.

At the November term of the court of common pleas, the first thing was to arraign Thomas Davis, a justice of the peace, for misconduct in office. He pleaded guilty, was fined one dollar, and ordered, in the language of the record, "to stand committed until performance." But what the misconduct was for which he was fined, the record sayeth not; neither is it known whether he raised the dollar, or was made familiar with the inside of the block-house. On the first day of this term, the Rev. Robert Armstrong received a license to solemnize the rites of matrimony. He and the Rev. Andrew Fulton were sent, by the general associate synod of Scotland, as missionaries to Kentucky, and arrived at Maysville in 1798; but, not liking the institution of slavery, Mr. Fulton went to the neighborhood where South Hanover now is, Indiana, and Mr. Armstrong came to Greene county, Ohio. This was the commencement of the Seceder denomination in this county. From this small beginning, it has become the most numerous, perhaps, of any other in the county. They form a large portion of an orderly, law-abiding and industrious population—strict in observing the Sabbath and in the discharge of their religious duties, and correct in moral conduct. They are mostly farmers, in independent circumstances. Mr. Armstrong was a small man, of vast learning, with the simplicity, in some things, of a child. An anecdote is told of his being at a log-rolling, assisting to carry a log, and having but a few inches of handspike, the weight of it rested mostly on him. The person with whom he was lifting, seeing his situation, said, "stop, Mr. Armstrong—let me give you more handspike." "No," said the rev. gentleman, "no more stick for me; I have already as much as I can carry." He was universally esteemed and respected. He died in 1818. He brought a very large library of books with him, and was very liberal in lending them. To this circumstance, perhaps, may be attributed the fact, that more books have been sold and read in this county than in any other of the same population in the state.

At this term, in the case of Wm. Orr vs. Peter Borders, leave was given to amend the declaration, on payment of costs—an indication that some attention began to be paid to special pleading. The first civil case that was tried by a jury, was that of Wallingsford vs. Vandolah. A verdict was rendered for the plaintiff of 24 cents, upon which "he paid the jury and constables fees."

At the December term of the common pleas, four cases of assault and battery were tried by jury, which took up the first day. The day following, this entry was made: William Chipman vs. Henry Storm, "judgment confessed for one cent damages and costs." But such is the imperfect manner in which the records were kept, that it is impossible to ascertain what the subject matter of the controversy was in which such heavy damages were admitted. The court decided, that the fee paid to the states' attorney, at the August term, was illegal, and should be refunded. This was the result of "the sober second thoughts" of the court about that twenty dollar fee, for which the attorney came from Cincinnati, more than 50 miles, through the woods, and drew nine bills of indictment and attended to the cases. At this term, Andrew Read, an early settler near where the beautiful village of Fairfield now is, took his seat on the bench as associate judge, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the election of William Maxwell to the office of sheriff. The first view and survey of a new road route was granted at this term. It was to commence at Springfield, pass the Yellow spring and intersect the Pinkney road near Isaac Morgan's. Wm. Maxwell, Lewis Davis, and Thomas Tounsley were appointed viewers, and James Galloway, jun., surveyor. So our fellow-citizen, Maj. Galloway, was the first county surveyor, surveyed the first road by order of the court, and afterwards made a map of the county, in its present metes and bounds, showing all the surveys and sections of the land, with their divisions and subdivisions into tracts. Tavern licenses were granted to Thomas Fream, William Moore, and James M'Pherson, to keep taverns in their houses for one year, and so ended the term.

The June term of 1804, was the last court ever held in the old log house. It was composed of the same judges, clerk and sheriff, with Arthur St. Clair, Esq., of Cincinnati, prosecuting attorney. The writer of this has been informed, he wore a cocked hat and a sword. William M'Farland was foreman of the grand jury. A singular incident took place at the opening of this court. There was a shelf in one corner, consisting of a board on two pins inserted in the wall, containing a few books, among which counsellor St. Clair searched for a bible, on which to swear the jury. At length he took down a volume, and observed, with his peculiar lisp, "Well, gentlemen, here is a book which looks thist like a testament." The foreman of the grand jury was accordingly sworn upon it—but the book, which so much resembled a testament in external appearance, turned out, in fact, to be an odd volume of The Arabian Nights Entertainment!! From this mistake, or some unknown cause, the practice of swearing on the Evangelists, has gone entirely out of use in this county, being substituted by swearing with the uplifted hand, or affirming. The grand jury found several bills of indictment, and were discharged the same day.

In proportion as cases of assault and battery begin to decrease, a sprinkling of civil suits make their appearance on the docket. Fourteen cases were called the first day, and all continued, except one, in which judgment was confessed, and stay of execution granted until next term. The entry of continuance was in this form: A. B. vs. C. D. E. F. and G. H. pledges for the defendant in the sum $——. This form was observed in all cases, the amount being more or less, according to the subject matter in controversy. On Wednesday of this term, Joseph Tatman produced his commission as associate judge, and took the oath of office. He afterwards, in 1816, in company with Samuel and William Casad, laid out the town of Fairfield, not far from the site of an old Indian town, named Piqua, at which Gen. George R. Clark defeated the Indians, in 1780. On this day, 22 cases were called: 11 continued, 2 settled, 1 judgment, 5 ruled for plea in 40 days, one in 10 days, 1 discontinued and 1 abated by death. This was certainly a pretty fair beginning, and quite encouraging to the learned profession.

The total amount of taxable property returned by the "listers," was $393.04, and this levy included houses and mills, if any. As to houses, there was but one returned, and that was valued for taxation at one dollar! Considering the sparseness of population, and small amount of property in the county, the proportion of litigation was greater then, than at this time, 1847, when the total amount of taxable property is $6,583,673. So much of a change in 43 years. They fought less and lawed more. In newly settled counties, there appears to be a peculiar fondness among the people for lawsuits. After a court has been organized in a new county, they still continue to settle their difficulties by combat, until fines become troublesome. The court then becomes the arena in which their contentions and quarrels are carried and finally disposed of. If one cannot afford the fine or imprisonment which would be incurred, by taking personal satisfaction, he can bring a suit, if any cause of action can be found, and no matter how small the amount claimed, or frivolous the matter, if he can only cast his adversary and throw him in the costs, he is as much gratified as if he had made him halloo "enough—take him off." It is this spirit which gives rise to so many trifling and vexatious law suits.

And now we take leave of our primitive dwelling house, court house and tavern. It is still standing, and occupied as a residence. While our drawing was being taken, an old-fashioned long-handled frying-pan was over the fire—its spacious bottom well paved with rashers of ham, sending forth a savory odor, enough to make a hungry persons' mouth water. What scenes it has witnessed—what memories it recalls. It has witnessed the organization of the county—the first administration of law and justice—the first exercise of the right of suffrage through the ballot-box, and the first legal punishment of criminals. Near it the first corn was ground into meal for the use of the settlers, and here they rallied to build block-houses to protect them from the hostile attacks of the Indians. As a tavern many a weary traveller, through the tall and lonely forest, has been sheltered and refreshed beneath its humble roof. How many buckeye lads and lasses have been reared within its walls—for

"Buirldy chiels and clever hizzies

How many jovial dances have been had on its puncheon floor. While we may suppose some lame or lazy fellow seated on a stool in a corner, prepared with an awl or Barlow knife, to extract splinters from the heels of the dancers, as fast as the sets were over. How many courtships have been carried on during the long winter nights—the old folks asleep, and the young lovers comfortably toasting their shins over the decaying embers—happy in present love, and indulging in bright anticipations of housekeeping in a cabin.

good old-fashioned honesty, to remind the rising generation of the hardships and privations our pioneer fathers encountered, in first settling the county, and to show by this humble beginning, compared with the present state of improvement, how much honest labor, pains-taking industry and thrifty management can accomplish.

Xenia, the county seat, is on the Little Miami railroad, 64 miles north of Cincinnati, and 61 from Columbus. It is a handsome, flourishing and well-built town, with broad streets, and some fine stores and elegant dwellings. The engraving represents a part of the principal street: the court house, shown on the left, is the most elegant, as yet built, in Ohio.

Xenia was laid off in the forest, in the autumn of 1803, by Joseph C. Vance, on the land of John Paul, who gave the ground bounded by Main, Market, Detroit and Greene streets, for the public buildings. The first cabin was erected in April, 1804, by John Marshall, in the southwest corner of the town. The first good hewed log house was erected for the Rev. James Towler, of the Methodist persuasion, from Petersburg, Va.: it is still standing, and is now the hatter's shop, a short distance west of the old bank. David A. Sanders built the first frame house, on the spot occupied by the new bank: it is yet standing, on Main street, in Gowdy's addition.

View in Xenia.

The first supreme court was held Oct. 3d, 1804. The grand jury held their deliberations under a sugar tree, in the rear of the present residence of James Gowdy.

The first court of common pleas in Xenia, was on the 15th of November, 1804, and was held by the associate judges. A license was granted to "William A. Beatty, to keep a tavern in the town of Xenia for one year, on the payment of $8.00!" This was the first tavern ever licensed in the place. It was a double hewed log house, two stories high, and was in progress of erection at the same time with Fowler's house. It stood on the south side of Main street, opposite the public square, on the spot where there now is a two story brick house, occupied as a drug store. In the west room, above stairs, the court was held. The first election in the place was held in this house. It continued to be a tavern until after the last war with Great Britain, and, until Mr. James Collier built his brick tavern on Detroit street, was the grand hotel of the place. In a corner of the west room, there was an old-fashioned bar—the upper part enclosed with upright slats of wood, with a little wicket, through which the grog was handed out in half pint glass cruets. In time of the war, the recruiting officers put up at this house; and here might be seen the recruiting sergeant rattling dollars on a drum's head, and calling for half pints, appealing to the patriotism of the bystanders, tempting them with gingling dollars, and adding thereto the potency of whiskey, to enlist recruits for the army. Court continued to be held in this house for the years 1804 and 1805, and until a new court house was built.

In 1804, the building of the first jail was let to Amos Darough; it was received from the contractor in October. It stood on ground now covered by the new court house, and was constructed of hewed logs. It was burnt down the year following; and in April, 1806, a new jail was accepted from William A. Beatty. It stood on the site of the present market house—was a rough log building; two stories high, with a cabin roof, and was burnt down in time of the war with England. The building of the first court house was let on the 8th day of April, 1806, to William Kendall, who was allowed six dollars for clearing the timber from the public square. The house was built of brick, 40 feet square and 28 feet high, with a cupola in the center of the roof, 10 feet in diameter and 15 feet high. It was finished, and on the 14th day of August, 1809, accepted.

On the 6th of April, 1806, "a license was granted to James Gowdy, for retailing merchandise, on his complying with the law!" He opened his goods in a log house, with a mud and stick chimney, which stood on Greene street, at the north end of where Mr. John Ewing's store now is. He was the first merchant in the place.

The first punishment for crime was in 1806. The person was convicted for stealing leather, to half-sole a pair of shoes. There was a sugar tree on the public square, which served as a whipping-post. He was tied up to the tree, and underwent the sentence of the court, which was to receive one stripe on his bare back, which was inflicted by James Collier. The sugar tree served as a whipping-post for the last time on the 8th of October, 1808. A man was convicted for stealing a shovel-plow and clevis, and the sentence was that he should receive eight lashes on his bare back, "and stand committed until performance." He drank a pint of whiskey just before hugging the tree, though it did not prevent him from halloaing lustily, while receiving the eight stripes.*

Xenia contains 1 German Lutheran, 1 Methodist Episcopal, 1 Methodist Protestant, 1 Seceder, 1 Associate Reformed and 1 Baptist church, beside 2 churches for colored persons—two church edifices are erecting, one by the Presbyterian and the other by the Associate Reformed denomination—17 mercantile stores, 1 foundery, 2 newspaper printing offices, 1 bank, a classical academy in fine repute, and in 1840, had 1414 inhabitants, and in 1847, about 2800.

JOSIAH HUNT resided in this county in the time of the last war with Great Britain. He was a stout, well-formed, heavy-set man, capable of enduring great hardships and privations, and was then a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. There was a tone of candor and sincerity, as well as modesty, in his manner of relating the thrilling scenes in which he had been an actor, which left no doubt of their truth in the minds of those who heard him. He was one of Wayne's legion, and was in the battle of the Fallen Timber, on the 20th of August, 1794.

At the commencement of the onset, just after entering the fallen timber, Hunt was rushing on, and about to spring over a fallen tree, when he was fired at by an Indian, concealed behind it. The latter was compelled to fire in such haste that he missed his aim. It was, however, a close shave, for the bullet whizzed through the lock of his right temple, causing that ear to ring for an hour after. The Indian's body was entirely naked from the waist up, with a red stripe painted up and down his back. As soon as he fired, he took to his heels. Hunt aimed at the center of the red stripe, the Indian running zig-zag "like the worm of a fence." When he fired the Indian bounded up and fell forward. He had fought his last battle.

He was an excellent hunter. In the winter of 1793, while the army lay at Greenville, he was employed to supply the officers with game, and in consequence was exempted from garrison duty. The sentinels had orders to permit him to leave and enter the fort whenever he chose. The Indians made a practice of climbing trees in the vicinity of the fort, the better to watch the garrison. If a person was seen to go out, notice was taken of the direction he went, his path ambushed and his scalp secured. To avoid this danger, Hunt always left the fort in the darkness of night, for said he, "when once I had got into the woods without their knowledge, I had as good a chance as they." He was accustomed, on leaving the fort, to proceed some distance in the direction he intended to hunt the next day, and bivauck for the night. To keep from freezing to death, it was necessary to have a fire; but to show a light in the enemy's country, was to invite certain destruction. To avoid this danger he dug a hole in the ground with his tomahawk, about the size and depth of a hat crown. Having prepared it properly, he procured some "roth," meaning thick white oak bark, from a dead tree, which will retain a strong heat when covered with its ashes. Kindling a fire from flint and steel at the bottom of his "coal pit," as he termed it, the bark was severed into strips and placed in layers crosswise, until the pit was full. After it was sufficiently ignited, it was covered over with dirt, with the exception of two air holes in the margin, which could be opened or closed at pleasure. Spreading down a layer of bark or brush to keep him off the cold ground, he set down with the "coal pit" between his legs, enveloped himself in his blanket, and slept cat-dozes in an upright position. If his fire became too much smothered, he would freshen it up by blowing into one of the air holes. He declared he could make himself sweat whenever he chose. The snapping of a dry twig was sufficient to awaken him, when uncovering his head, he keenly scrutinized in the darkness and gloom around—his right hand on his trusty rifle "ready for the mischance of the hour." A person now, in full security from danger, enjoying the comforts and refinements of civilized life, can scarcely bring his mind to realize his situation, or do justice to the powers of bodily endurance, firmness of nerve, self-reliance and courage, manifested by him that winter. A lone man in a dreary interminable forest, swarming with enemies, blood-thirsty, crafty and of horrid barbarity, without a friend or human being to afford him the least aid, in the depth of winter, the freezing winds moaning through the bare and leafless branches of the tall trees, while the dismal howling of a pack of wolves—might be heard in the distance, mingled with the howlings of the wintry winds, were well calculated to create a lonely sensation about the heart and appal any common spirit. There would he sit, nodding in his blanket, undistinguishable in the darkness from an old stump, enduring the rigor of winter, keeping himself from freezing, yet showing no fire,—calm, ready and prompt to engage in mortal combat, with whatever enemy might assail, whether Indian, bear or panther. At day-light he commenced hunting, proceeding slowly and with extreme caution, looking for game and watching for Indians at the same time. When he found a deer, previously to shooting it, he put a bullet in his mouth, ready for reloading his gun with all possible dispatch, which he did before moving from the spot, casting searching glances in every direction for Indians. Cautiously approaching the deer, after he had shot it, he dragged it to a tree and commenced the process of skinning with his back towards the tree, and his rifle leaning against it, in reach of his right hand. And so with his rear protected by the tree, he would skin a short time, then straighten up and scan in every direction, to see if the report of his rifle had brought an Indian in his vicinity, then apply himself to skinning again. If he heard a stick break, or any—the slightest noise indicating the proximity of animal life, he clutched his rifle instantly, and was on the alert prepared for any emergency. Having skinned and cut up the animal, the four-quarters were packed in the hide, which was so arranged as to be slung to his back like a knapsack, with which he wended his way to the fort. If the deer was killed far from the garrison, he only brought in the fore-quarters. One day he got within gun-shot of three Indians unperceived by them. He was on a ridge and they in a hollow. He took aim at the foremost one, and waited some time for a chance for two to range against each other, intending, if they got in that position, to shoot two and take his chance with the other in single combat. But they continued marching in Indian file, and though he could have killed either of them, the other two would have made the odds against him too great, so he let them pass unmolested. Amidst all the danger to which he was constantly exposed, he passed unharmed.

"Cruel as death, and hungry as the grave; Burning for blood, bony, gaunt and grim,"

Owing to the constant and powerful exercise of the faculties, his ability to hear and discriminate sounds was wonderfully increased, and the perceptive faculties much enlarged. He made $70 that winter by hunting, over and above his pay as a soldier.

At the treaty at Greenville, in 1795, the Indians seemed to consider Hunt as the next greatest man to Wayne himself. They inquired for him, got round him, and were loud and earnest in their praises and compliments: "Great man, Capt. Hunt—great warrior—good hunting man; Indian no can kill!" They informed him that some of their bravest and most cunning warriors, had often set out expressly to kill him. They knew how he made his secret camp-fires, the ingenuity of which excited their admiration. The parties in quest of him had often seen him—could describe the dress he wore, and his cap, which was made of a raccoon's skin with the tail hanging down behind, the front turned up and ornamented with three brass rings. The scalp of such a great hunter and warrior they considered to be an invaluable trophy. Yet they never could catch him off his guard—never get within shooting distance, without being discovered and exposed to his death-dealing rifle.

Many years ago he went to Indiana, nor has the writer* of this ever heard from him since, nor is it known among his old friends here, whether he is living.

Nine miles north of Xenia, on the Little Miami river and railroad, are the Yellow Springs. It has been fitted up as a place of fashionable resort. The improvements, consisting of a hotel and numerous cottages, are in a picturesque situation. "The springs are strongly impregnated with sulphur and possess medicinal qualities, deemed equal in utility to any in the United States." The Duke of Saxe Weimer says in his Travels:

The spring originates in a limestone rock, the water has a little taste of iron, and deposits a great quantity of ochre, from which it takes its name. The spring is said to give 110 gallons of water per minute, which is received in a basin surrounded with cedar trees. The yellow stream which comes from the basin, runs a short distance over a bed of limestone and is afterwards precipitated into the valley. These limestone rocks form very singular figures on the edge of this valley; the detached pieces resemble the Devil's Wall of the Hartz.

Clifton is a flourishing manufacturing village, 10 miles north of Xenia, on the Little Miami, and contains 2 churches, 3 stores, 1 cotton and woollen factory, 1 paper, 1 grist and 1 saw mill, and over 300 inhabitants. The name originated from the cliffs which bound the river at this place. The stream commences running through a deep ravine at the eastern extremity of the village, and after circling around the town, leaves it on the southwest. For more than two miles it runs through a deep and narrow gorge, bounded by perpendicular and impending rocks, overhung by evergreens, and presenting scenery of a wild and picturesque character. In this distance the stream is estimated, in an ordinary stage of water, to afford sufficient power for one hundred and five pair of burr stones. The mills and factories above mentioned are upon it, and the woollen and cotton factory is built in the ravine and extends completely across it. The view given, was taken a short distance below this building, and shows a little water-fall on the northern wall of the bounding cliffs, at that point about 50 feet high.

Fairfield, 12 miles northwest of Xenia, on the Dayton and Springfield turnpike, is a smart business place, in a rich country. It contains 4 churches, 5 stores and about 400 inhabitants. Bellbrook, 9 southwest of Xenia, has 3 stores, 4 churches and about 350 inhabitants. Jamestown, 11 east of Xenia, on the Dayton, Xenia and Washington turnpike, has 8 stores, 3 churches and 50 dwellings. Spring Valley, 7 southwest of Xenia, is a small manufacturing village, at which is a woollen factory, 1 oil, 1 grist and 1 carding mill.

Cedarville, on Massie's creek, 8 miles from Xenia, has 3 stores and churches, and about 300 inhabitants. Burlington and Paintersville are small places. On Massie's creek, 7 miles northeast of Xenia, is an ancient stone fort and a mound.

Prominent Farmer Vic- tim of Heart Disease

The death of David Gump, a resident of Butler township for nearly three score years, took place Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock at his home three and one-half miles south of Garrett.

Mr. Gump, who was past eighty-one years of age, had been in failing health from heart disease since last February. His condition was worse for the last week, but he was able to be out of bed. He arose and dressed Friday morning, but soon afterward was stricken fatally.

Born in Miami county, Ohio, Mr. Gump came to Indiana with his parents when he was only eight months of age. The family settled near Hometown and Mr. Gump lived there until his marriage to Phoebe Vandolah. They then moved onto the farm where Mr. Gump lived the remainder of his life.

The first Mrs. Gump died six years after the marriage. On Feb. 12, 1880, Mr. Gump married Amanda Rinehold and she died June 1, 1923. Surviving are two children by the first marriage and four by the second. They are Wm. Gump of northwest of Garrett, Emma Gump of near Hometown, Perry Gump, who lives near the family home, and Gerry Gump and the Misses Lena and Effie Gump, at home. There are also three grandchildren and one great grandchild: one brother, Perry Gump of Philadelphia; and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Fair of North Manchester, and Mrs. Louisa Kuhns of south of Garrett. Mr. Gump was a lifelong member of the Church of the Brethren.

Funeral services will be held at the church at Cedar Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the pastor, the Rev. A. F. Morris, officiating. Interment will be made at Cedar Chapel cemetery. The pallbearers will be Samuel H. Downend, Lewis Duket, Wm. Ballentine, H. A. Grubb, David Ober and Henry Shenk.

Benj. Vandolah
MARY FAUSTINE

August 16, 2000

Barbara K. Fahey
330 N. W. 16
Newport, Oregon 97365

Hello Barbara,

I received your address from Maggie Hawk who had contacted you through her research of the Hand family of Green County, Ohio, and Allen County, Indiana. She said you were a Vandolah descendant.

My husband is also. His gr grandmother was Frances Vandolah who married Mathias Fitch in 1867 and Frances was the daughter of James Vandolah the mill builder here. We are still living right here in Allen County, Indiana, and just about a mile south of the old Vandolah Mill site. I have scoured the old homesites and cemeteries here and also spent considerable time at the Ft. Wayne or Allen Co. Public Library which is good on genealogy. However, since I have been searching the Fitch name as well as about 30 others I have not plumbed the depths of the Vandolah family I am sure.

My husband passed away this past April very suddenly at the age of 71 and so I am coping as best I can at this time. But I want to complete as much of the family genealogy as I can for the children, of which we have 4 and also 12 grandchildren. And besides I love this hobby.

Quickly his genealogy runs like this:

Warren John Fitch 1929-2000 married Betty L. Brown (me) son of Otis Fitch 1904-1976 and Esther Doll 1900-1999 son of John Fitch 1872-1947 and Rosabelle Hollopeter 1874-1952 son of Mathias Fitch 1843-1923 and Frances Vandolah 1843-1923
dau. of James Vandolah and Rebecca Tucker

So that is his local history, all here in Allen Co., Indiana.

Maggie said that you had worked on the Vandolah genealogy and thought you might be able to give me what you have found. I had traced them to Green County, Ohio and then others have given me bits and pieces of the family as well as finding some things on the Internet, which may or may not be true. I realize that it is not always accurate. What part of the Vandolah family do you come from? Does it have connection with the Indiana family or just the Green County, Ohio, family? Whichever, I would like to exchange information with you if you would be interested. I may or may not have anything new for you unless you are interested in our family ties here in Allen County. Most of my information on other branches are 2nd hand.

Let me know if you are interested. I will enclose a SASE for your answer. Also I do have an internet address..... wfitch5413@aol.com

Hope to be hearing from you soon.

Dear Barbara,

Hope I don't sound really out of it, but I am not sure that I ever answered your first letter to me. And I usually keep copies of what I send out, but cannot find any to you, so just in case I did not will try again. If you did not hear from me, I am very sorry. I usually get right back to those who respond to me, but have had about 6 other requests plus trying to get my mother's house up for sale before we get too far into fall. She has had to go to a nursing home, and she had lived in her house for 30 years and never threw anything away. Consequently, it was a terrific job, but we have painted, put down carpet, removed everything, either stored it, or put it in a garage sale, or threw it away.....some of all of those. It just went on the market this week. Now I am trying to play catch-up on my correspondence. So as I go through your letter maybe I can recall if I sent you at least one that said I received your information.

And I really appreciate your time and trouble. Maggie Hawk has sent me quite a bit and then I found more on the "Ohio River Families" website on line. Plus what there is on the Latter Day Saints web site. It helped me to put some of the Vandolah family in some kind of order. I accidentally found the Ohio River Families Website when I was looking for some of my own family, the Voyles who lived in Southern Indiana along the Ohio River. Found a lot more Vandolahs than Voyles.

Will try to answer what questions I can that you posed.

Interesting about the farm that was in the Garrett Vandolah family. And the fact that Joseph and Polly's children might have been raised by another. Maggie sent me the interesting story about the courtship of Joseph and Mary Polly.

You asked about the Whicker's. Yes Mary Polly's two sons did come to Allen County, and you can find them in census records as well as in the Hometown Cemetery. I should correct that about the cemetery..... This is what I have in the inscription list:

Under the Whicker name we find Adah, Alva G., John M., Louise, and Minnie W. Both Adah and Louisa are listed under the parents of S. and J.A. Whicker. One listing has Louisa as the dau. of D.S. and J.A. Whicker. There is a Stephen Whicker who purchased a lot in the Hometown Cemetery in 1868 in the old cemetery. Lot #49 which is right next to the George Washington Hand lot #50., the Erickson lot #51, and the James Vandolah lot #52 and Charles Erickson Lot # 53. So all are there in the same area. Sarah Hand Erickson was the daughter of William and Phebe Hand. The two Whicker boys were Stephen and William.

I do not find Stephen, William or Mary Polly Whicker in the cemetery, just the children.

Yes, some of the Hands did come to Allen County to live. The family that is known best around here is the family of George Washington Hand, who would be the son of Sarah Hand, sister of Mary Polly. Sarah had G.W. Hand before she was married, thus the last name of Hand. Then she married William Erickson and raised the family here. I have an old obit of William E. Hand who would be a son of George Washington Hand. As follows:

Hand.....William E. Hand, a live-long resident of Eel River township, died Tuesday morning at his home at the age of 70 years. Death was due to a complication of diseases and followed an illness of six weeks. The deceased was born December 25, 1845, on an adjoining farm where he lived until 11 years of age when his parents moved to the place where he died. He is survived by his wife and 8 children

George, of Chicago
Mrs. Walter Hursh of Eel River township

Jesse of Eel River township
Mrs. Herbert Sage of Eel River township
Zelpha at home
Gladys at home
Alice at home
William at home
as sister, Mrs. Jefferson Sickler, of Santa Cruz, California
8 grandchildren

He was a member of the Huntertown lodge No. 689 F. & A.M. Funeral services Thursday afternoon at one o'clock at the residence. Rev. Gruber officiating. Burial at Huntertown Cemetery.

The tombstone at the cemetery shows that William's wife was Arminga M. Essex and William would have died about 1915 according to age and birth. He was the son of George W. Hand and his parents farm is shown on the 1885 map next to his farm. S. Whicker is also on the map with 80 acres close to the Hand farm.

Warren's grandmother Fitch probably saved this because they were acquainted with Jefferson Sickler. Sickler's were intermarried with the Fitch family back in PA.

Also to complicate matters the mother of Arminda Essex had married 2nd Stephen Whicker. We certainly do weave a complicated genealogy!

It is very probable that Phebe Hand who is buried in the Huntertown Cemetery came to Allen County with her daughter, Sarah, and Sarah's husband, William Erickson, and they raised G.W. Hand with the rest of their family. It would appear that William died in Ohio and then Phebe came here with daughter Sarah. Interesting is the fact that Sarah Hand and William Erickson had a daughter and named her Serepta, named no doubt after her sister Serepta. Serepta, their daughter married William Thrush and lived very close to the Fitch family. The Thrushes are very good friends of ours and I copied their family information from their Bible. Too bad it didn't go any further back than Serepta and William Thrush! They knew little about their ancestry.

As I write this I am wondering if I did send you anything of the family or what I did promise I would send. Please get back with me. I am usually not so forgetful, but I kept putting off getting things together for you and since I cannot find a letter that I might have sent you, I may just have put it off and didn't do it at all. So let me know if I sent you anything. Sorry, but seemed I had so much to do that I may just not have done it, because I always had this guilty feeling everytime I thought about it!! I am really not a basket case.....just am not sure what I did. And you were so good to get right back to me with so much information.

If I didn't will be glad to get James Vandolah and Rebecca Tucker's family to you as far down as I have it. I still have quite a bit of information to get into my Family Tree Maker and that may be another reason I failed to get back to you. Hard to print off informative pages when the info is still not into the computer.

Barbara,

I decided at the last minute to include my outline descendency chart on the Vandolah name so you can see what I have. Some of this came from the "Ohio River Families" Web site. This is all that I have put into the program at this time. Naturally, this does not include anything you sent to me. I know there is more to be put into the Family Tree Maker program but this is a quick outline of the family as I have it or had it up to a month or so ago.

There is nothing in my computer about the Hands. So far, it is still just on paper so will have to input some of it later, along with what you have sent me, and what I have received from Maggie Hawk. I believe some of the families are carried down further on the ORF Web site, but I have not taken the time to put those in the computer either. Mainly what is there are just names, and some dates, and not the real interesting information that makes a genealogy come alive.

Will include my own family outline so you have our family down to the last generation. Also will check and see if I have any interesting stuff on James Vandolah, Benjamin's brother. I went looking on the internet for the Faustine name and the only thing I found was the marriage of Benjamin and Mary Ann which gives an 1826 birthdate for her. But it does not list any parents for her so nothing further back to find so far. Since I already had the info about the marriage, that was not new. Nothing more on several other of the web sites. It just calls Mary Faustine as "of Greene County, Ohio" and does not say she was born there. I note you have her birth in PA. There were no Faustines listed as PA families in anything I looked at. They are very scarce anyway and do not give much info. There was a Louisiana family and Mary's marriage and that was about it. So will have to keep searching. Apparently they were married in Allen County, IN, but do not know where they met. I did find their marriage in the Allen County Marriage Book myself. Still need to make a thorough search of the census records to show where there were Faustines. I have not done that as yet and will mean a trip to the library. I have gone through several Allen Co., cemeteries and did not find any there. Just when I will make it to the library, I have no idea.

Just remember while you look through this, your information is not recorded here, so if it differs from yours, I will be working on it. But should you see any real glaring errors that you did not already send me, let me know.

Dear Betty

How nice to hear from another with interest in the Van Dolah families. I would love to share what I can. Most of my info. is in cluttered notes, un documented and have a lot of questions and blank areas. So please excuse the messy mailing but want to get you started with what I have.

I don't know much about James Van Dolah, Rebecca Tucker & Their descendants. But I do know James & my direct Ancestor Benjamin Van Dolah were brothers. Their parents were Joseph Van Dolah and Mary 'Polly' Land.

Our original Ancestor to America was Hendrick "Henry". Said to be from Holland. Settling on Sandy Ridge, Amwell twp. Hunterdon Co. N.J. ca 1725. I've wondered if he could be from Northern Belgium, as it was once part of Holland and today still speaks Dutch.

An unknown source has said he was from Veenendall, Utrecht, Holland and had a 1st wife named Eliza Ruth. Wish I knew where this was found ??

In Hunterdon Co. N.J. The original Van Dolah farm was in the family as late as 1950. It still could be ?? It inherited down thru son Garrett's family. There also was a school called The Van Dolah School. ^{1988 was called} the Hogan farm

I've yet to locate the land in Fayette Co. PA & Green Co. OH. I've also not been to Allen Co. In. to research.

There is a Cem. called "Barber Cem" which it is that Hendrick to be buried in. Garrett & his family are buried there.

I've not seen the documents but believe some or all of Joseph Van Dolah & Mary Polly's Hands Children could have been raised by others. They were all quite young when Joseph died.

Mary Polly re married & divorced a Wm. Whicker/Vicker. I've heard she had 2 sons by him. Do you have any info. on them? Names were Wm. Jr. & Stephen. I don't know if they came to Indiana from Ohio with Mary Polly, after the divorce?

Do you know when Mary Polly died and where buried?

What little I know on the Hand family is from Margaret Hawk & pieces from others. Didn't some of Mary Polly's brothers & sister reside in Allen Co. In. also?

Do you know anything on a Faustine or Fauschman family in the Allen Co. In. area. My Benjamin Van Dolah married Mary Ann Fauschmann 3 July 1842 Allen Co. In. Her name has been spelt both. Since married there, I would assume she had family near? According to 1850 census she was b. in PA ca 1826. No one has had any info. on her.

I'll leave you with all this to ponder, for now. Please feel free to ask questions or let me know if I'm in error. The Van Dolah lines are very hectic to sort.

Look forward to seeing your info. & working with you.

A page of things that I might want to send to Maggie Hawk concerning the Hand family.

In the Huntertown Cemetery we also find that William T. Thrush, July 5, 1830, married Serepta Ericson, born October 30, 1830. William died August 31, 1881 and Serepta died November 11, 1873. They are listed on one tombstone with two children..... George W. Thrush, born and died Oct. 6, 1862 and Ella May born and died Nov. 11, 1873. My first acquaintance with Serepta was in the Thrush Bible where she was listed as the wife of William, who were apparently the first Thrush settlers. I do not remember if it actually named her as Ericson, but it must have. The fellow who owns the Bible did not really know his ancestors except to know that her name was Ericson. I believe it was written as that in the Bible. Would have to check. I could get you that record if you would want it. It might appear that Serepta Ericson was then the daughter of Sarah Hand and William Ericson and possibly named after Sarah's sister. Serepta is a very unusual name. Yes, I also have William Erixson and Sarah Erixson and also Rebecca Ann Erixson daughter of C. and J.E. all buried at Huntertown. I have seen the name spelled Erixson, Ericson, Erickson, Ebixon, and Bixon. What a combination!! But my Thrush friend said it was Ericson or Erickson.

Also close to the William and Sarah Erixson tombstone are the graves of children of William and Serepta Thrush, Charles W. Thrush, died January 15, 1867, at the age of 2 months and 29 days, and Jesse J. Thrush, died August 8, 1870, age 1 year 9 months and 9 days.

This Thrush family has lived for many years just over the Allen County Line into DeKalb County, Butler Township and the man who has the Bible still lives there. There was a lot of close connection with Perry Township, Allen County, and Butler Township, DeKalb County. In fact my father-in-law's farm was in both counties and the county line ran right through it. And the Thrush farm was the next farm north and Gary Thrush still farms the Fitch farm for us today.

My Huntertown Cemetery list has under the Whicker name, Adah. Alva G., John M., Louisa, and Minnie W. Both Adah and Louisa are listed under the parents, S. and J.A. (one listing has Louisa, dau. of D.S. and J.A. There is a Stephen Whickery who purchased a lot in 1868 in the old cemetery, Lot #49 which is right next to the G.W. Hand lot #50, W.M. Erickson, lot #51, James Vandolah lot #52, and Charles Ericson Lot # 53.

This was an obit that I found in the Fitch Bible when my mother-in-law gave it to me. It was probably passed down to her from Rosabelle Hollopeter Fitch, wife of John who was my husband's grandmother Fitch. No dates or more information than is here.

HAND.....William E. Hand a life-long resident of Eel River township, died Tuesday morning at his home at the age of 70 years. Death was due to a complication of diseases and followed an illness of six weeks. The deceased was born December 25, 1845, on an adjoining farm where he lived until eleven years of age when his parents moved to the place where he died. He is survived by his wife and eight children.....

George, of Chicago

Mrs. Walter Hursh of Eel River township

Jesse of Eel River township

Mrs. Herbert Sage of Eel River township

Zelpha at home
Gladys at home
Alice at home
William at home
a sister, Mrs. Jefferson Sickler of Santa Cruz, California
eight grandchildren

He was a member of the Huntertown lodge No. 689 F. & A.M. Funeral services Thursday afternoon at one o'clock at the residence. Rev. Gruber officiating. Burial at Huntertown Cemetery.

The photo at the cemetery shows that his wife was Arminga M. Essex. William would have died about 1915 according to age and birth, and according to the Eel River map of the 1880's it would appear that he is probably the son of George W. Hand, also buried at Huntertown. G. W. Hand's land is right beside W. E. Hand's.

My guess is that this was saved because of the wife of Jefferson Sickler. He was a cousin to the first generation Fitch boys here in this area and came to live with them and guess he must have found a wife in one of the Hand girls. However, I am sure the Fitches knew the Hand family for other reasons, all living in the same area.
